The Jean Monnet Center of Excellence (JMCE) held an international conference with the attendance of many speakers including both academics and practitioners. JMCE had a great honor to host a special lecture delivered by Professor Richard Whitman from the University of Kent. Professor Whitman's keynote speech was about the prospects for research in the areas of external actions of the European Union and was attended by a great number of the faculty members, guests and students. On the first day of the conference there also were two sessions, one devoted to the future directions and priorities of the EU foreign affairs, and the second one to internal and external determinants of the EU's external activities. The first session was attended by dr. Clara Portela from University of Valencia who spoke about the EU human rights sanctions regime, followed by dr. Monika Sus from Hertie School of Governance, who discussed Post-Brexit EU/UK security cooperation. This session was also complemented by the approach of dr. Anita Sęk, from the Permanent who shared her knowledge and expertise on sanctions in EU foreign policy. The second session was addressed mainly by the members of the Jean Monnet Center of Excellence, namely prof. Tomasz Brańka, prof. Paulina Pospieszna, dr. Adam Jaskulski, dr. Rafał Szymanowski, dr. Joanna Skrzypczyńska and prof. Jarosław Jańczak who shared their research conducted on sanctions, EU foreign policy, Brexit negotiations, EU-China as well as EU-Japanese relations. The long day was concluded with the keynote speech by prof. Beata Maszner-Przybylska entitled "An impact of institutional changes in the EU on the shape of its external relations." The second day of the conference was entirely devoted to the students and PhDs roundtables which were aimed to share their small research and views on the EU and its integration process from the outside, i.e. from the perspective of non-member states.

Topic: "The European Union and the external borders – between debordering and rebordering"

Date: October 2019

Venue: Faculty of Political Science and Journalism, Adam Mickiewicz University, Poznań ul. Uniwersytetu Poznańskiego 5

In October of 2019 Prof. Jarosław Jańczak offered a series of 10hrs lectures on the external borders of the European Union. The lectures were delivered to students of the Security Studies as well as Media and Communication programs, however, they were also attended by students of other majors. In total there have been 234 students participating in this course.
